

PARTNERSHIP & GOVERNANCE GUIDE

A Cross-Movement Community of Practice for Collective Power

Purpose: To guide how POWER360 Feminist Hub members collaborate, share power, coordinate resources, make decisions, learn together, safeguard people, and build durable feminist movement infrastructure.

Tanzania | 2026

1. Background and Rationale

POWER360 Feminist Hub is a new cross-movement Community of Practice bringing together feminist, women's and girls' rights organizations and allied social justice actors in Tanzania. The Hub is grounded in a shared realization, the challenges affecting women and girls are interconnected, while movements and organizations responding to them are still too often separated by thematic mandates, funding silos and institutional boundaries.

Gender-based violence cannot be separated from economic exclusion, school dropout, unequal access to science and technology, mental health, domestic work, climate vulnerability, access to justice, digital spaces and the narratives that influence how communities understand women's rights. POWER360 therefore creates a platform where organizations working on different parts of the same system can connect their expertise, constituencies and resources to build collective power.

The collaboration builds on practical experience of organizations learning and acting together through resource sharing, joint activities during the 16 Days of Activism, and community mobilization platforms such as the Piga Chenga Festival. These experiences have shown that coordinated action can generate greater reach, legitimacy and influence than isolated organizational efforts.

Our shift From a learning hub to a durable cross-movement platform: shared infrastructure, shared narratives, shared learning, coordinated action and collective power.

2. Identity, Vision and Purpose

Vision

A Tanzania where women and girls exercise power, shape public narratives, access rights and opportunities, and influence the systems and decisions that affect their lives.

Purpose

To strengthen the relationships, infrastructure, trust, shared strategy and collective capacity that enable feminist organizations and allied movements to build power together across issues, constituencies and communities.

Strategic objectives

- Build shared feminist movement infrastructure that strengthens every participating organization and the wider ecosystem.
- Deepen cross-movement collaboration among actors working on economic justice, climate justice, education, STEM, domestic workers' rights, mental health, sport, legal justice and gender equality.
- Shift narrative power by strengthening the ability of women, girls, activists and community media to create and influence public narratives on women's rights and equality.
- Create mechanisms for coordinated action, shared learning, adaptive practice and collective accountability.

- Strengthen women's and girls' leadership and ensure grassroots constituencies influence the Hub's priorities and decisions.

3. Guiding Principles

Feminist leadership and power sharing: Women and girls are not only participants or beneficiaries; their leadership, knowledge and lived experience inform priorities, strategies and public narratives.

Equity: Every partner brings valuable expertise, relationships and constituencies. No thematic partner is considered inherently superior to another.

Transparency: Information on decisions, resources, responsibilities and results is shared openly among members to strengthen trust and accountability.

Mutual benefit: The collaboration must strengthen both the collective ecosystem and the organizations that contribute to it.

Community ownership: Grassroots women, girls and affected constituencies should influence what the Hub prioritizes and how collective action is designed.

Collaboration over competition: Members seek complementarity, reduce duplication and create space for joint problem solving rather than competing for visibility or ownership.

Care, safety and inclusion: Safeguarding, wellbeing, disability inclusion, non-discrimination and protection from retaliation are embedded across Hub activities.

Learning and adaptation: The Hub treats learning as a collective practice, using evidence, reflection and feedback to improve decisions and strategies.

4. Collaborating Partners and Roles

POWER360 is designed around complementary roles. Partners maintain their organizational identities while contributing specialized expertise and participating in shared governance, learning, narrative work and collective action.

Partner	Core role	Contribution to the Hub
Hakizetu Organization	Programmatic Lead; Economic Opportunity & Movement Infrastructure	Provides overall programmatic coordination, convenes members, leads shared strategy and narrative reporting, coordinates movement infrastructure, and contributes expertise in economic opportunities for young women and girls who are survivors of gender-based violence.
WoteSawa	Financial Lead; Domestic Workers' Rights	Receives and manages grant resources, leads financial accountability and partner disbursement, supports financial capacity strengthening, and brings expertise on the rights and protection of domestic workers, particularly girls and young women.
Women Action	Monitoring, Evaluation & Learning; Access to Justice	Leads the Hub's MEL function in collaboration with Hakizetu and WoteSawa M&E teams; supports shared learning and evidence use; contributes legal support and access-to-justice expertise for women and girls affected by GBV.

Nourish Africa	Climate & Women's Economic Justice	Connects feminist organizing with climate resilience and economic justice, particularly the experiences of women and girls smallholder farmers.
Girls First Initiative	Girls' Education & School Retention	Brings expertise on girls' education equality, school retention, participation and barriers that push girls out of school.
Adilisha	Advocacy Lead: Girls in STEM Education and Leadership	Promotes girls' education rights and participation in STEM subjects and future pathways where girls remain underrepresented.
Afya Plus	Mental Health, Healing & Wellbeing	Integrates mental health and psychosocial wellbeing into feminist movement-building, particularly for women and girls affected by GBV.
Ni Hekima Pekee	Sport for Social Change & Community Mobilization	Uses sport as a platform to prevent GBV, challenge harmful norms, engage young people and mobilize communities for social change.

5. Collaboration Structure

POWER360 uses a shared leadership model that separates programmatic, financial and learning responsibilities while keeping strategic decisions collective. The structure is intended to prevent concentration of power and to create clear lines of accountability.

Programmatic Lead – Hakizetu Coordinates the overall programmatic direction of the Hub, convenes partners, supports strategy development, facilitates implementation planning, coordinates narrative reporting, and maintains alignment with the Hub's feminist and cross-movement purpose.

Financial Lead – WoteSawa Receives, manages and accounts for collaboration funds; coordinates transparent partner disbursement; supports financial compliance; and works with members to strengthen financial management where needed.

MEL Lead – Women Action Coordinates monitoring, evaluation and learning with the designated M&E teams of Hakizetu and WoteSawa and with focal persons from member organizations.

Advocacy Lead - Adilisha coordinating the Hub's collective policy influence, evidence to advocacy work, public positioning and engagement with decision-makers, while ensuring that women's and girls' voices and grassroots evidence inform advocacy priorities.

POWER360 Coordination Council Composed of executive or senior representatives from all member organizations. It provides strategic oversight, approves major collective decisions, reviews progress and protects the values of the collaboration.

Thematic Leads / Action Teams Partners lead areas where they have recognized expertise, while drawing in other members when issues intersect. Action teams may be temporary and formed around a shared challenge, campaign or opportunity.

Community and Constituency Voices The Hub will create structured opportunities for women, girls, activists and community representatives to influence priorities, learning and narrative work.

6. Governance, Decision-Making and Power

POWER360 recognizes that collaboration can reproduce the same power imbalances it seeks to change unless governance is intentional. The Hub therefore commits to transparent, participatory and feminist decision-making.

- Strategic priorities, major activity changes, external positioning and significant resource allocations will be discussed through the Coordination Council.
- The Programmatic Lead facilitates decisions but does not unilaterally determine collective priorities.
- The Financial Lead provides financial analysis and compliance advice but does not independently determine programmatic priorities.
- Where possible, decisions will be reached by consensus. Where consensus is not possible, members will document the issue, seek a mediated solution and use an agreed voting procedure as a last resort.
- Members will disclose actual or potential conflicts of interest before relevant decisions are made.
- Leadership and visibility will be shared across members, including opportunities for different partners to represent POWER360 in public and learning spaces.
- Grassroots women and girls will be engaged through assemblies, consultations, listening spaces and narrative platforms so that institutional voices do not replace constituency voices.

POWER360 Power Rule Important decisions should be examined through at least three lenses: feminist rights and power, allied-movement expertise, and the lived realities of grassroots women and girls.

7. Trust-Building and Collaboration Practice

Trust in POWER360 is built through shared action, not meetings alone. Members have already experienced the value of pooling resources, staff time, ideas and networks during joint activities, including the 16 Days of Activism and the Piga Chenga Festival, a community mobilization platform that uses sport, dialogue and public engagement to build a movement against violence.

- Regular spaces for honest reflection on what is working and what is creating tension.
- Early communication when activities, budgets or commitments change.
- Recognition of each partner's expertise and constituency rather than treating collaboration as subcontracting.
- Peer support and resource sharing, including knowledge, tools, referrals, venues, media relationships and technical expertise.
- Joint celebration of achievements and shared ownership of public results.
- Clear mechanisms for raising concerns without retaliation.

8. Shared Feminist Movement Infrastructure

A central purpose of POWER360 is to build infrastructure that serves the collaboration as a whole. The Hub will prioritize systems and capacities that remain useful beyond a single project cycle.

Safeguarding & inclusion: Shared standards, referral pathways, annual learning and minimum expectations on gender, disability inclusion and protection from sexual exploitation, abuse and harassment.

Organizational resilience: Peer learning on governance, policies, systems, continuity planning and organizational wellbeing.

Digital safety & collaboration: Safer digital practices, shared communication protocols, secure information management and appropriate collaboration tools.

Resource mobilization: Joint opportunity scanning, donor intelligence, proposal learning and mechanisms to reduce unhealthy competition among members.

Financial management: Capacity strengthening, transparent disbursement processes, accountability standards and peer support led by the Financial Lead.

Evidence & learning: Shared indicators, learning questions, reflection spaces and documentation of cross-movement outcomes.

Communications & advocacy: Shared messaging processes, joint advocacy assets and coordination for public engagement.

9. Feminist Narrative Network

The Feminist Narrative Network is a flagship POWER360 platform focused on narrative power. Its objective is not simply awareness raising. It seeks to shift who controls the public story about women, rights and equality.

- Train women, girls, activists, storytellers, community journalists and community media actors to create rights-based narratives.
- Support women and girls to move from being subjects of other people's stories to creators and shapers of public narratives.

- Develop community radio, digital stories, short films, podcasts, photo stories and social media content grounded in lived experience and dignity.
- Strengthen the collaboration's ability to respond collectively to harmful narratives, misinformation and stigmatizing portrayals.
- Connect thematic narratives across economic justice, climate, education, STEM, domestic work, mental health, sport, legal justice and GBV.
- Create ethical storytelling standards that prioritize consent, safeguarding and the agency of women and girls.

10. Cross-Movement Action and Learning

POWER360 will create practical spaces where partners with different expertise jointly analyse shared problems, design responses, test approaches and learn together. These spaces may be called POWER360 Action Labs or Collision Labs.

Climate + Economic Justice + GBV Explore how climate shocks and livelihood insecurity can increase women's vulnerability and what coordinated prevention and economic responses are possible.

Education + STEM + Protection Address the intersecting barriers that push girls out of school and limit participation in STEM pathways.

Domestic Work + Legal Justice + Mental Health Connect rights protection, legal pathways and psychosocial support for girls and young women in domestic work.

Sport + Narrative Power + Youth Use sport and community media to challenge harmful norms and strengthen youth-led public narratives on equality.

11. Financial Management and Resource Sharing

WoteSawa, as Financial Lead, will manage collaboration funds in close coordination with Hakizetu as Programmatic Lead and in accordance with the grant agreement and agreed POWER360 financial procedures. Financial stewardship will be treated as a shared accountability function rather than a source of hierarchy.

- A collaboration budget will be developed and reviewed collectively, with clear allocations, responsibilities and documentation requirements.
- Partner disbursements will follow agreed plans, compliance requirements and documented approvals.

- Financial information relevant to collective decisions will be shared transparently with members.
- Participating organizations receiving funds will account for them within agreed timelines before subsequent disbursements where applicable.
- The Financial Lead will support capacity strengthening for partners that need assistance to meet financial-management and reporting standards.
- Any suspected misuse of funds, fraud, conflict of interest or financial misconduct must be reported promptly through agreed safeguarding and accountability channels.

12. Monitoring, Evaluation and Learning

Women Action will coordinate monitoring, evaluation and learning in collaboration with the M&E teams of Hakizetu and WoteSawa and designated focal persons from member organizations. The purpose is not only to count activities, but to understand whether the collaboration is becoming stronger, more equitable and more influential.

- Track changes in trust, quality of relationships and cross-movement collaboration.
- Assess whether shared infrastructure is strengthening participating organizations and the wider ecosystem.
- Document changes in narrative power, including whose voices are visible and who shapes public conversations.
- Capture examples of joint action that achieved outcomes no single organization could have achieved alone.
- Use participatory reflection with women, girls and member organizations to adapt strategies.
- Produce learning products that can strengthen feminist movement-building beyond POWER360.

13. Meetings, Communication and Documentation

- During the formation and early implementation period, the Coordination Council will meet regularly, with frequency determined by the needs of the collaboration.
- Thematic teams may meet more frequently during joint campaigns or action periods.
- Meeting records will capture decisions, responsibilities, deadlines and unresolved issues rather than only attendance.
- Major external communications concerning the Hub will be coordinated with relevant partners to ensure accuracy, shared ownership and safeguarding.
- Member organizations will keep their own boards or governing structures informed about their participation in POWER360 and any material responsibilities they carry.

14. Safeguarding, Inclusion and Duty of Care

All POWER360 members are expected to ensure that their personnel, programs, communications and procedures do not harm participants, staff, activists or communities. Safeguarding is a collective responsibility and a condition of participation in shared activities.

- Apply survivor-centred, child-safe and do-no-harm approaches where activities involve survivors, children or young people.
- Respect informed consent, confidentiality and dignity in storytelling and media production.
- Mainstream disability inclusion and accessibility in meetings, activities and communications.
- Prevent and respond to sexual exploitation, abuse, harassment, discrimination and retaliation.
- Use referral pathways and qualified services when needs exceed an organization's mandate or expertise.
- Support wellbeing and care practices for activists and staff engaged in emotionally demanding work.

15. Conflict Resolution, Accountability and Exit

Differences are expected in a diverse cross-movement collaboration. POWER360 will address disagreements early, fairly and transparently, with the objective of protecting relationships without compromising accountability.

- Concerns should first be discussed directly among the affected partners, with facilitation by the Programmatic Lead or another mutually agreed member where appropriate.
- If unresolved, the matter may be referred to the Coordination Council for mediation and a documented decision.
- Serious safeguarding, fraud, abuse, discrimination or integrity concerns will follow the relevant organizational and grant-level reporting procedures and may require independent handling.
- A member may voluntarily exit the collaboration through written notice and an agreed transition plan for responsibilities, funds and information.
- Repeated or serious breaches of agreed standards may result in suspension or removal following a fair, documented process.

16. Review and Evolution of the Guide

This guide is intended to support an emerging collaboration and should evolve as POWER360 grows. Members will review the guide periodically, particularly after major learning moments, changes in membership, or new funding arrangements. Amendments should be collectively agreed and documented.

Living document POWER360 will formalize its collaboration without losing the flexibility, creativity and trust that allowed members to begin working together in the first place.

17. Member Commitment

By endorsing this guide, members affirm their commitment to the purpose and principles of POWER360 Feminist Hub and to working in ways that strengthen collective power, feminist leadership, transparency, mutual accountability and the rights of women and girls.
